Society of Architectural Historians to Host 70th Annual Meeting (2020)

“This conference is our chance to welcome and nurture upcoming scholars in our field,” said SAH President and Conference Chair Mohammad Gharipour, professor of architecture at the University of Maryland. “Society members care deeply about the vitality of our discipline and want to help others produce high-quality research on the built environment. We have organized these activities tailored for students and junior faculty to promote professional growth and collaborations.”

On Wednesday evening, the Society will name the 2025 winners of the SAH Publication Awards and SAH Award for Film and Video at SAH’s annual awards ceremony.

Immediately following, Maurice J. Hobson, Associate Professor of Africana Studies at Georgia State University, and Akira Drake Rodriguez, Assistant Professor at the University of Pennsylvania’s Weitzman School of Design, will

“We sincerely hope that conference attendees and the public take the extra time for a short walking tour during lunchtime breaks and/or a longer tour on Wednesday or Sunday. It’s worth it to experience Atlanta’s architecture firsthand,” said Crawford and Dainese “The
